

The BHEI workgroup invites the ATTC Network to an exciting virtual Training of Trainers for

Culturally and Linguistically Appropriate Services (CLAS) Standards: Supporting Culturally Responsive Services in Behavioral Health Settings

This 6-hour course will review the National Culturally and Linguistically Appropriate Services (CLAS) Standards which provide a framework to assist organizations and professionals to become culturally responsive in care. Using a cultural humility lens, this interactive training will explore the health and behavioral health disparities that underscored the development of the CLAS standards, and how organizations can benefit from implementing CLAS to achieve equity in service provision.

The content will further provide an overview of the NIATx process improvement model as a potential implementation approach to incorporate CLAS in behavioral health settings and effect culturally responsive care to diverse communities in need.

The Training of Trainer event includes a required supplemental 3-hour session on NIATx to help build trainer capacity to effectively present the NIATx module of the course.
